Jersey jam

There's a time-honoured tradition that takes place on Jersey, its roots firmly in the islands' past apple growing heritage. Black Butter is in the island's blood and the yearly ritual, where the locals engage in its making, is a heart-warming event that involves singing, dancing and storytelling into the early hours.

So, what is black butter? Not like butter at all, it's more the consistency of a sweet jammy relish. Also, known as 'La Niere Buerre', it's made from cider apples. Every Autumn, islanders gather to lend a hand while new cider is boiled, for up to two days, until it's reduced by half, and then follows the addition of apples, sugar, lemon, spices and a hint of liquorice. The mixture is stirred continuously by a wooden 'rabot' before being poured into awaiting jars. La Mare produces a more commercially made version that is both award-winning and equally delicious.

Sark's little secret

Sixteen years ago, at a kitchen table surrounded by her five children, Caragh began to experiment with good quality chocolate and delicious Sark Gold (the island's very own creamiest of creams). The results were so delectable, that a handmade chocolate business was born. From a modest production of truffles, ganaches and caramel, this family business has grown to produce exquisite pralines, manons, salted caramels, bars and bark scooping a 'Great Taste' and 'Academy of Chocolate' Awards along the way.

A visit to their kitchen, shop and café will fill your senses with the heady chocolate aroma and you can see the traditional chocolate making skills on show as they hand roll, pipe, temper, mold and enrobe. Their shop is utterly charming crammed with interesting chocolate facts and a cabinet choc full of bestsellers alongside their newest and experimental flavours too.

things up

As well as our vast range of big brands and premium spirits, you'll find a selection of wine, Champagne and much, much more in our onboard shop.

Blackberry Mojito

A twist on the classic. Muddle $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of blackberries. Place a handful of mint leaves in the bottom of 2 glasses. Spoon blackberry mixture on top. Add $\frac{1}{2}$ cup rum, 1 tsp sugar, and juice from 2 limes. Stir to combine. Top with crushed ice. Add club soda, garnish with mint leaves and more blackberries.

We recommend

You can't go wrong with Captain Morgan's white rum especially when you can pick up 2 litres for just £12.50 each in our duty free shop. Or spice it up with Sailor Jerry rum – new onboard.

Sangria

This classic Spanish drink using red, white or rosé wine is one of the all time greatest holiday drinks. Choose your wine, pick a soft mixer – usually lemonade – add something stronger like brandy or rum and garnish with lots of fruit.

We recommend

Many would use a budget wine, but with a better wine you can match its flavour profiles to your additions. Try something young and fruity like Villa Maria Private Bin Pinot Noir and add a splash or two of Grand Marnier.

Orange Gin Prosecco Cocktail

What could be nicer than this delightfully refreshing cocktail? Mix 2 parts gin and 2 parts lemonade with 1 part prosecco and serve in a large glass with plenty of ice. Garnish with a fresh orange slice.

We recommend

If you've not tried the new Tanqueray Sevilla Gin, it's a must! Fruity and zesty, it's made from bittersweet oranges and orange blossom. Perfect for Summer quenching.

Wines of the World

is now the 7th largest wine producer in the world. The popularity of Chilean wines has massively grown as they offer top quality across the price range. With over 20 grape varieties grown there, mostly of Spanish and French origin, Chilean wine offers something for everyone. Bright sunlight, pure air and healthy vines means Chile is a prolific source of classic grapes from Sauvignon to Cabernet (rated the best value in the world) as well as its unique Merlot-like signature red, Carménère.

▶ The United States

with its varied terrain and different climates means that it can offer the discerning wine drinker a range of superb and often good-value wines. Wine is produced in every state, however just five states play a truly significant role - California, Oregon, Washington, New York, and Virginia - with California producing the largest output at around 90%. The north coast region is the most famous (Napa Valley and Sonoma County) which produces top class Pinot Noir and Zinfandel.

▲ New Zealand

wines haven't been around for long (since the mid 20th century), but their impact has been huge. Their wine is produced in several mostly maritime, cool climate wine growing regions. New Zealand is most famous for its Marlborough Sauvignon Blanc with its distinctively crisp gooseberry flavours, and more recently its dense, concentrated Pinot Noir from Marlborough.

▶ Spain

is the third largest producer of wine in the world. There are hundreds of grape varieties grown including Tempranillo, Garnacha, Macabeo, Parellada and more. Spanish wine has grown over the last twenty years and now produces a diverse range of brilliant wines, from beautifully aged Reservas and Gran Reservas from famous regions like Rioja and less well known Valencia, to bright, modern whites like Albarino and Godello. And of course, Spain's Garnacha grape (Grenache) produces a fantastic rosé.

◀ Australia

is the world's fourth largest exporter of wine. There are 60 designated wine regions ranging across every state with the best wines tending to come from the cooler southern territories like New South Wales, Victoria, McLaren Vale and the Barossa Valley. All the wine regions produce different wine varieties and styles that take advantage of the particular Terroir such as: climatic differences, topography and soil types. The major varieties are predominantly Shiraz, Cabernet Sauvignon, Chardonnay, Merlot, Semillon, Pinot Noir and Riesling.

▼ France

is arguably the world's most important wine-producing country in terms of consumption and production. You have to admire the pure quality France offers, from some of the most expensive wines in the world to some great value offerings throughout the country. Classic French grape varieties are now grown across the globe but some of the best examples of Pinot Noir, Malbec and Chardonnay are still found in France.

The diversity of French wine owes much to the country's wide range of climates from Champagne, its most northerly region, with one of the coolest climates in the wine-growing world to the warm, dry Rhone Valley in the southeast and France's deep south, Provence and Languedoc-Roussillon which enjoys a Mediterranean climate of hot summers and mild winters.

Nestled in the valley of Forgue, deep in the East Highland hills, The GlenDronach is one of the oldest distilleries in Scotland, which has been quietly perfecting sherry wood maturation since 1826. Founder, James Allardice, built the distillery in the fertile landscape of the valley of Forgue, where he discovered the rich depths of sherry wood maturation, marrying Scottish spirit to Spanish cask.

It's believed the well-kept secrets of the distillery have been guarded for nearly 200 years by a parliament of rooks who love The GlenDronach so much they try to nest in the warehouses. The distillery folk believe as long as the rooks stay, the whisky will be good.

GlenDronach Forgue Aged 10 Years

Try this richly sherried Highland single malt, matured in fine Pedro Ximénez and Oloroso sherry casks. A dram which encapsulates the heritage and terroir of Forgue: a cornucopia of brambles, ripe barley and resinous oak, with a long, lingering finish.

Tasting Notes:

Nose: Seville blood orange and cherry, with harvest-ripe barley, roast chestnuts and winter-spice cocoa.

Taste: Sweet Valencia orange and Morello cherries with ripe barley. As the flavour deepens, savour dark currants, praline toffee and earthy brambles.

Finish: A richly satisfying, lingering finish of orange-laced tobacco and ground nutmeg.

THE FAMOUS GROUSE

A very special whisky introduced by Matthew Gloag (third generation of a much-respected family grocer established in 1800) is known today as The Famous Grouse. This fine dram was discovered and savoured by discerning gentlemen visiting the Highlands for outdoor sports.

Launched as "The Grouse" in 1897 and drunk by the gentry after a day out shooting, the brand grew in popularity over time and was eventually renamed "The Famous Grouse" in 1905. The brand has stayed true to its roots and its rigorous high standards and uncompromising production methods ensure it remains Scotland's favourite whisky.

The Famous Grouse Smoky Black

Expertly blended using a peated malt to produce a deliciously smoky yet sweet whisky. Smooth, peaty and aromatic, it's a complex yet approachable blend with hints of dried fruit and soft smoky notes.

Nose: Smoky, aromatic, rich.

Palate: Dried fruit and spices (aniseed/cloves), smoky yet smooth.

Finish: Long, sweet and smoky.

The Famous Grouse Toasted Cask

Their famously smooth blend rested in freshly toasted new oak casks. A wonderfully smooth blend layered with hints of soft oak, creamy vanilla and caramelised sugar.

Nose: Candied fruits, buttery shortbread, citrus peel and toasted marshmallow.

Palate: Dried fruits, soft spices and a hint of oak.

Finish: A smooth, well-balanced finish.
